state guidelines and the Payment Card Industry Data Security Standards (POFODSSC)re information, please visit Towson's Paymteard Acceptance Information page (

Payment Card

Acceptance Information | Towson University

Departments must receive prior approval from the Payment Card Committee (PGC) ivepayments by credit cards. All departments that accept payment candst comply with Towson University's Payment Card Acceptance Policyd follow guidance provided by the PCC applicate of MD guidelines and the Office of Technology Services. After PCC applicate receive payment by credit card, a bank merchant ID must be obtained. Failure to follow university guidelines or a lapse in security may result in the suspension or revocation of the right to accept credit card payments.

The security around handline payment cards and the direct and indirect costs of processing those payments must all be considered you determine options for payment acceptance.

What you need to knowbefore proceeding with your officialbank merchant ID application:

- 1) Reviewcurrent and/or anticipated income activity and current payment options accepted.
- 2) Review the Towson University Payment Card Acceptance Policy.
- 3) Consider implications of accepting via payment card:
  - a. Will current payment options continue to be accepted
  - b. What processes will need to change to accommodate the new payment type?
  - c. How will the new tasks resulting from accepting payment cards be performed?
    - i. Daily recording, balancing, and reconciling of payment card transactions
    - ii. Providing all PCI DSS documentation (procedures, hardware inventory, device inspections, completed Setsessment Questionnaire, staff training, etc.)
- 4) Review the approved options for payment card acceptance (https://www.towson.edu/universityaccounting/payment.htm Towson University and determine your proposed methodindividual departments are responsible for all costs associated with the acceptance of credit cards including equipment costs and bandessing fees. Review and consider if both the direct and indirect costs and fees make adding the payment option worthwhile for your department